

Episerver Block Cheat Sheet

The following is a quick reference to the blocks used within the patient support pages.

Version: 1.3 / 03.28.18

Confidential. For Internal Use Only

Accordion Block
Displays collapsible content panels (Accordion Items) for presenting information

This block is used to create the structure for an accordion block.

Accordion Content Item
Adds an accordion item with a content area to an Accordion Block

This block is used to create the expandable content items within the "Accordion Block." The accordion picks up predetermined styles automatically.

Accordion Rich Text Item
Adds an accordion item with a rich text editor to an Accordion Block

This is another option for creating rich content within an accordion. This is to be implemented within the "Accordion Block".

Adobe Analytics Header
Used to insert the Adobe Analytics token in the Header of the page

This block is used to input analytic tracking details for adobe.

BMG Image Block
Use this to add an image in your content

This block is used to create an image in a column of a 2 column layout by utilizing the native Episerver Styles for adjusting the bootstrap values.

BMG Navigation
Use this block to create dynamic navigation (vertical or horizontal)

This block is used to create the main navigation of the site.

BMG Search Field Block
Use this block to create a search field block for Search Result Block.

This block is used to create a search field on a site.

BMG Search Results Block
Use this block to see your sites search results.

This block is used to generate the search results of a search inquiry.

Bootstrap Column Block
Add this block to a row block to create a new bootstrap column

This is a container block used to build out the column structure of a page element. This is usually used in conjunction with the “Bootstrap Column Block” and the “Bootstrap Container Block.”

Bootstrap Container Block
A block to create a container in a Content Area

This is a container block used to build out the structure of a page element.

Bootstrap Row Block
Add this block to a container block to create a new bootstrap row

This is a container block used to build out the row structures of a page element. This is usually used in conjunction with the “Bootstrap Container Block.”

Editorial and CoPay Block
Use this block either to create an Editorial Block or a Co-Pay block

This block is used to create a two column section of content. To be used in conjunction with the “Video Content Block.”

External Link Disclaimer
Block is meant to handle disclaimer pop-ups for links pointing to external websites.

This block is used to create the content within the external link disclaimer.

Form Container Block
No description available

This block is used to create the form holding container.

Form Step Block
The Form Step will be used to add different step to the form. When validated, each step will refresh the section and not the page.

This block is used to build each step of the form except the summary step.

Fluid Form Rich Content Block
No description available

This block is used to create rich content elements within the form.

Form Field Block
The form field will be the block used to add the actual fields of the form.

This block is used to create all field types in the form except hidden fields.

Form Hidden Field Block
No description available

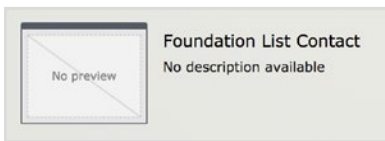

This block is used to create a hidden field in the form.

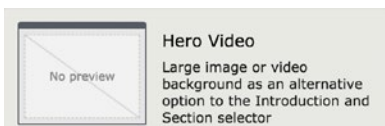

This block is used to build the form summary step.

This block is used to create a content type which is a "Foundation List." This list is based off predetermined styles.

This block is used to create the contact information within a "Foundation List."

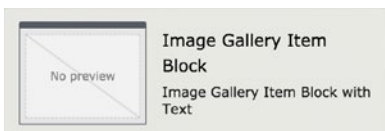

This block is used to create the video hero element on the home page.

This block is used to implement html code with a home or content page.

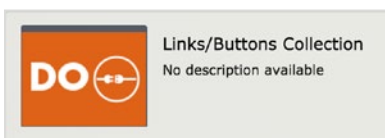

This block is used to create a block of links/button on a page. Default styles will be applied in accordance with the style guide.

This block is used to create the elements in the image gallery.

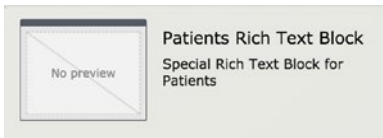

This block is used to create a selector for multiple languages on a site.

This block is used to create a block of links/button on a page. Default styles will be applied in accordance with the style guide.

This block is used to add the primary logos in the header and footer and is inherited to child pages unless overridden.

This block is a generic content block used to add stylized content to the body of a page. Predetermined styles have been applied to the WYSIWYG elements.

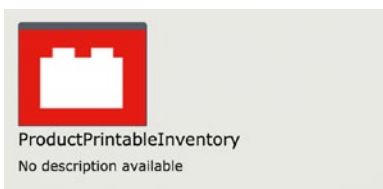

This block is used to create an expandable callout.

This block is used to create content within the "Product In-Page Toggle Tab Block."

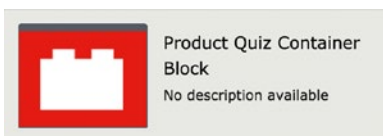

This block is used to create a tab for toggling content in the body of a page.

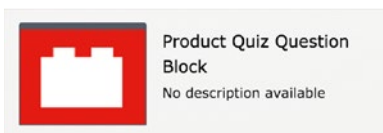

This block is used to build the printable inventory element.

This block is used to build steps within the printable inventory.

This block is used to create the container for a quiz.

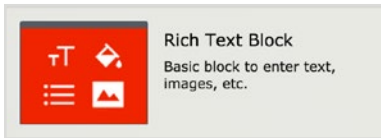

This block is used to create individual questions in the quiz

This block is used to create the answers for the questions in the quiz.

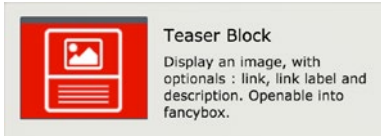

This block is used to build out elements which require HTML code support.

This block is used to implement and stylize body content.

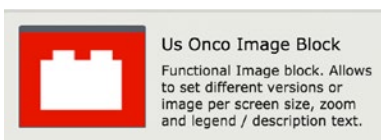

This block is used to auto generate a sitemap.

This block is used to create content within the home page animation. This block is only used on the home page.

This block is used to create a 1 or 2 column headline block. WYSIWYG styles have been applied so the body content can be stylized.

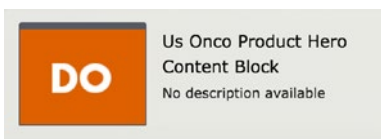

This block is used add an image in the main body of a page.

This block created by default when you click “New Page.” This creates a new content page.

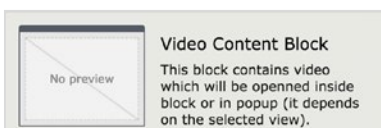

This block created by default when you click “New Page.” This creates a new patient home page.

This block is used to create content within a hero on a page. The hero background color, headline color, and sub-headline color are derived from this blocks main page.

This block is used to create content items within the body of a page.

This block is used to create a video. To be used in conjunction with the “Editorial and CoPay Block.”